We have sufficient female help in our own family. We also used what britter and milk we wanted for the family, consisting of seven persons. About one-third of any dairy are heifers. I raise my own heifers to take the place of old caws turned off in the fall; they are mostly natives, with a sprinkling of Alderaey, Ayrshire, Devon, and Dutham. The above is copied from m book of sales for 1874—no guessing. larger yield of hutter might have been made from a better selection of cows especially if they had been fed more liberally with grain. The premium of fered by the ollicers of our county society last fall for the largest yield of butter, per capita, brought out several competi-tors; the largest figure reached was two hundred and lifty-three pounds to each cow in a dairy of nine cows. I believe that a good dairy faria, properly mun-aged, will pay a fair prollt besides interest investment and expense of running it, id as to the question.  Does farating and as to the question. it will always be an open slip-stody trying to farm it. There are but few butter and cheese factories in this (Delaware) county, perhaps not more than one or two in successful operation. I need not tell you that it is a butter producing county, novertheless; but with one exception the butter is made in private dairies, ranging from two or three cows up to one hundred, generally from ten to thirty. The detailed statement of imports and exports of the United States for the year ended Jana 30, 1875, has just been ned by the bureau of statistics, Compared with the preceding fiscal year a marked falling off in the aggregate of foreign and domestic trade is shewn. The total value of imports for the year was $550,996,253, a falling off of nearly $12,000,000 compared with the preceding year. Of the merchandise imported, $167,180,644 was non-ilntiable, leaving 386,725,609 to pay $156,479,131 collected frem customs last year. The decrease in gold coin imported was $5,773,313, and in silver coin, $2,205,916. During the year the excess of gold coin exported compared with 1874, was $30,542,-$27, and silver coin $560,252, which shows a loss in coin fer the last tiscal rear of over $39,000,000.

A glauce at the leading articles im-ported, centrasting their quantities and values with those for the year ended une 30, 1874, will be of special interest. niren and steel, and their manufactures, the decrease was $15,317,296. Of this decrease nearly $7,000,000 was in steel hars and rails alone. In brewn sugar the decrease was over $7,000,000. This decrease did not affect the rething and hars and rails alone. In brewn sugar the decrease was over $7,000,000. This decrease did not affect the refining and exportation of that article, the value of refined sugar exported from the United States rising from $1,041,162 in 1874 to refined sugar exported from the United States rising from $1,041,162 in 1874 to States rising from $1,041,162 in 1874 to $2,585,382 in 1875. In leaf tobseco and cigars the fulling off was $1,854,556, which represents a decrease of $1,000,000 pounds of leaf tabacce and $41,000 eigars. What Came of Joking an Italian.

The Schenectady Star says: An Italian peddler, who gave his name as L. Pierce, entered the residence of Mrs. Buchanau, Celloes, N. Y., and offered her some statues, pictures, etc., fer sale; all of which the old lady examined closely, and the Italian being able to speak English but very poorly, she commenced to joke him for the purpose of hearing him talk. She hid one of his statues behind her lack, and when he missed it he demanded it of her. She donied having any knowledge of the missing article, wherenpon, without further provocation, he took up one of the glasses and struck her on the head with it, inflicting a weund four inches long and into the bone. BOCKO AND THE DEER.

Of a demon in my view.

A Story for the Children. Bocko was a dog. He had several brothers and sisters, and they were all little clinnky dogs like himself. But they had high opiaions of themselves. Bocko was the largest, and the rest looked up to him, although, to be sure, that was net much trouble, as they did not have to look very high. One reason why as his short legs would carry him. Ho had rather better fortune thm most hunters, for it was not long before he saw a vory fine deer coming leisnrely down a path in the woods.

Bocko immediately ran toward it. The deer looked at him, and then stopped. So did Bocko.

"Well?" said the deer.

"Well?" said the deer.

Bocko did not make any answer. He did not fluink it proper to talk to animals that he was lunting. But he did not know exactly what to do first. He had never hunted a deer before. So he thought he had better bark a little. That came mutural to him. So he ran close up to the deer and barked.

The deep unt down his head, and then he said:

"What are you going to do? Yon're a very uncivil creature."

"No, I'm net necivil," replied Bocko, nd his mother saw him coming, they all rushed out to meet him.

"Oh I where is the deer!" they cried.

"Oh! where is the deer?" they cried.
"We are so hnngry! Did you leave it in the forest? Shuw us where it is, and we will go get some of it. Come, brave Bocko, where is it?"

Bocko stood silently, his tail going further and further between his legs.
"What's the matter?" cried his mother. "Can't you speak? Where is the deer? Did you see one?"
"Yes," said Bocko, in a low voice.
"And didn't kill it?"
"No." said Bocko: "he wouldn't let."

"No," said Bocko; "he wouldn't le me."

What a chorus of disappointment and disgust greeted this annonneement!

Bow-wow! Bow-wow! WOW! WOW!

Bow-wow! Bow-wow! wow! Wow!!

Bow bow! wow-wow! BOW! Bow.!

Bow-wow-wow-WOW!!

Bocko did not wait to hear any more.

Ho was analying away when his mother. Ho was sneaking away, when his mother took him by his ear and led him aside, out of the noise.

"Bocko," said she, "it's bad enough to boast about things you have done, but it's ever so much worse to beast et what you are going to do. Do you think you will remember that !"

"I do," said Bocko.—St Nicholas.

An Important Matter. Galignani's Messenger has the fol-lowing: Dr. Burd has published one of the most curions dissertations we ever remember having seen, and which, we think, contains advice which may be aseful to ench of our readers who are affected with weakness in the chest. He Bocko was the largest, and the rest looked np to him, although, to be sure, that was net much trouble, as they did not have to look very high. One reason why they thought seem nuch of their high brother was, that he was alwaye talking of the great things he had doae, and the great things he intended to do.

One day the family was out of meat. The mother-dog proposed to send the children out to a neighboring town to prowl about the market and bring home what they could pick up.

But Bocko opposed this plaa. "I what they could pick np.

But Bocko opposed this plaa. "I am tired of bits and bones," he said.
"There is no reason why we should not have the very best of meat. We have the very best of meat. We have no on in this way long enough.

"There is no reason why we should not have the very lest of meat. We have gone on in this way long enough. Now, my idea is this: You all stay at home and take a map, and make yourselves as comfortable as you can, and I will go lunting. I will go into the forest and kill n deer. Then we can have the very best meat, and all we want of it. A whole deer will hast a long time."

"Oh, that will he delightful!" cried his sisters. "Hat do you think you can kill a deer?"

"Oh, that will he delightful!" cried his sisters. "Hat do you think yon can kill a deer?"

"Oh, yes!" said his sisters and the small brother; "they're perfectly awfin whon you open your month that way."

"And de you see those teeth?"

"And de you see that leg, and this one, and the two others? Did you ever see stronger looking legs than they are? You can feel my musele, if you like."

The sisters and the small brother felt his musele, and delared that with such teeth and such legs ho ought to be able to kill a deor. And the more be talked and they listened, the more certain they felt about it.

So they agreed to stay at home and take a map while he was ont hunting. The old mother did not altogether approve of the plan, but Bocko seemed so confident nbout the matter, that she thought she would leth im go.

So off went Bocko to the forest as fast as his short legs would carry him. Ho so off went Bocko to the forest as fast eases." Dr. Burq's pamphlet is too important for us to rest content with a single article ou this interesting subject. A Delermined Window Breaker.

The Physician,

The following is from a paper on "The Causes of Typhoid Fever in Massachusetts," published in the second annual report of the State board of health of Massachusetts:

How a "Corner" is Managed.

We hear of corners in wheat, in stocks, and in almost everything that men can speculate in. Serioner's Monthly tells us how a corner is managed, as follows:

A B and C combine their means and credits to make a corner in July. They therefore quietly begin in May to bny corn to be delivered in July. They gradually buy all the corn in the market, and, of necessity, must hny all that arrives, paying for the latter whatever is demanded. When a purchase is thus made, seller and buyer put up a margin, either in cash, or certificate, or deposit. As soon as the corner becomes known, there is an effort made to break it. The settlement takes place at three P. M. on sachusetts:

A young butcher, between twenty and thirty years of age, was attacked with typhoid fever. He was a bachelor, and occupied a good-sized chamber lighted by two windows and having anopen fire place.

The fever was mild, with daily febrile combination, hot skip thing alight dimensions.

demanded. When a purchase is thus made, seller and buyer put up a margin, either in cash, or certificate, or deposit. As soon as the corner becomes known, there is an effort made to break it. The settlement takes place at three P. M. on the last day of the moath. Those who have sold corn to the corner and have no corn to deliver, pay the difference between the price at which they sold, and the ruling price at the close of business on the last day. As the corner has thus purchased sometimes five times as much little.

The fever was mild, with daily febrile cerebration, hot skin, thirst, slight diarrhea and rose spots, with no violent symptoms. There was no indication for drugs. He was bathed two or three times and wor firely itself or not, according to his taste. The covering of his body was regulated by his sensations. A slight wood fire, just enough to insure ventilation, was kept in the fireplace, and one of the windows was raised a little.

the ruling price at the close of business on the last day. As the corner has than purchased sometimes five times as much corn as there is to be had, amounting to millions of bashels, and the price has advanced ten cents a bushel, the profit is enormous. As the prices advance, additional margins are required. Those failing to put up the additional margins, lose what they have already put up. The anti-corner factions seek to so crowd sales on the corner as to exhaust its capital and credits, and render it anable to buy at the advance prices. Thus, the cornor is compelled to send out in the cornor is compelled to send out in the cornor is compelled to send out in the cornor yand buy for cash all the corn in sight, to prevent having it rushed into Chicago at the last moment. These are exciting times. Corn at such a moment may be purchased of the corner for shipment, from six to fifteen cents a bushel less than it is selling for on choles and the corner men, and at other times of the acti-corner men, and at other times of the acti-corner men, and at other times of the acti-corner men, and at other times of the corners are of euch questionable honesty, that the Legislature of Illinois has declared the operation of a corner to be a felony. Corners are to mpted in wheat, oats, barley, pork, and lard, and seme of them have been quite encessful in a pecuniary way. It requires nerve, andacity, and money, or credit. Recently a bank here wont into a corner, issning its certificates of deposit for margins; the corner failed, and oto keep him in bed.

we cannot die just when we wish it, and because we wish it. The fact may be very unromantic, but it is a fact, that a too large dinner or a falso step on the stairs kills much more easily than a greut corrow. These "fragments" of lives, how they strew our daily path on every side!

Not a house do we enter, not a company do we mix with, but we mere than gness—we know—that these our frieuds, men -we know-that these our friends, men and women, who go on about the world deieg their work and taking their pleas-ure therein, all carry about them a secret

"What are you going to do? You're a very mivil recature."
"No, I'm net necivil," replied Bocko, who thought that he must answer the titue. "I came out hunting, and not to talk. I am going to take a deer home for my family to eat."
"And you think of taking me?" said the deer.
"Yes," said Bocko.
The deer gave a grin. Perhaps it was not a real grin, but it looked like one.

The dert of Calcutta, says a traveler, commonly known as Fort William, is one of the most splendid and convenient all military establishments to be found in an any part of the globe. It is very spaced town, and somewhat resembles the Tower of London, in that it consists of the globe. It is revy spaced town, and somewhat resembles the Tower of London, in that it consists of various streets and squares, alapted for different military purposes. On all sides it is guarded by a high and strongly built rampart, which is surrounded in its turn by a broad and deep fosse, over which are placed drawbridges, leading to the principal gatoways. The fort is often the scene of animated festivity, and the presence of plaracle to the principal gatoways. Is is well-known that the Hindu tricks have been handed down from the most distant ages, from father to son, there is little wonder that such a similarity can exist.

The particular trick alluded to is the apparent coaversion of a brass coin into a snake. The juggler gave me the coin to hold, and then seated himself, about five yards from me, on a small rug, from which he never attempted to move during the whole performance. I showed the coin to several persons who were close beside me, on a form in front of the juggler. At a sign from him, I not only grasped the coia I held firmly in my land, but crossing that hand with equal tightness with my left, I enclosed them both as firmly as I could between my knees. Of course I was positively contain that the amall coin was within a contain that the amall coin was within a contain that the amall coin was within the contained the course of the pack, and the sandwiches in the "Denhter's" coat-tails. One morning the we were starting out for a loag forencon's walk, in Constantinople, the "Donbter" was sceptical about the possibility of getting anything to eat on the way, and so took at the possibility of getting anything to eat on the way, and so took at the possibility of getting anything to eat on the way, and so hie room dark and filled with het foul atmosphere. The odor was of that offensive sort that sick chaaubers are too often charged with. But the great cortain that the small coin was within my double fists. The juggler then begins as one of incantation, accompanied by a monetonous and discordant kind of dry, his lips cracked, his eye wild, his pulse 120, and he was so restless and deficions that it was all his attendants could do to keep him in bed.

His annt said she came to nurse her nephew, and had found him with open myndows, exposed to noise and currents of air, drinking cold water freely as he chose, and taking no medicine. These evils she had endeavored to remedy, but windows, exposed to noise and currents of air, drinking cold water freely as he chose, and taking no medicine. These evils she had endeavored to remedy, but in spite of all her efforts he had rupidly grown worse.

The physician states his conversation with the anut and his refusal to continue in charge unless everything was restored as it had been on her arrival. The windows were opened, the stove was removed, a fire made in the chimney and the blankets were taken from the patient. He goos on to say:

I gave the sick man a tumbler of winter, which he drank as if he were quenching an internal fire. All this they bore in silence, but when I called for a large inh, and made preparation for a bath, they remonstrated, and declared a cold bath would kill him. my patient got a cool effusion by ponning water all over him. He was then put to bed, tightly covered, and soon went to sleep. By night his ceadition lad greatly improved, and the next day, twenty-four hours later, his fever assumed its previous mild type, his pulse was about eighty and his head tolerably After this he came up to the epectators, and opening his month wide, permitted as to look into his throat, but no suske or sanke's tail was visible—it was seeningly down hie throat altogether. The fight has been a long and bliter one, and the result was curefully predetermined. A sketch of the prominent actors in the struggle is not devold of Interest, when coming from the lips of a friend of al-parties. Win. C. Ratston, the late President of the Colifornia Bank, went to the Pacific to secure a clerkship in a bank, but without a penny to his name; yet through his Indomitable energy, his unquestioned ability as a dinancial manager, his pinck, perseverance and dish, he won his way to the confidence of those who had money to hovest, and as his success he speculo-tive ventures was uniformly fortunate, be soon had the handling of the greater por-tion of the available cash of the section at his own control. He organized the Bank of California in 1861, with idinself as Cashier and O. D. Mills, a mere agarehead, as President, with a capital of $5,000,000 and authority to extend to 20,000, 000. For the first five years the Bank was vigorously employed in building itself up. It was a desideration; the country required an institution of precisely its un ture, and its legitimate profits were in ture, and its legithmate profits were immense. Its business was performed-solely in gold, and through its great influence gold has always been the circulating medium of the Pacific coast. About 1870 the Bank, or rather Ralston, began to speculate, slowly at first and carefully. It acquired mines; it built railroads and fold out bouleyards; it purchased real estate and builded thereon; botels, opera-houses, stemboats, fell into its hands through various means, until its influence was fell. various means, until its influence was felt in every undertaking of a speculative na-ture in Colifornia and Nevada. This grove has many advantages which no other grove has, as it stands high above the level of the river which surrounds the grove, and it is always cluan and free from dust, with a refreshing breeze across the Monatiquot, making it nice and cool. Many improvements have been made in and about the grove this season; Mr. T. J. Dunbar, the owner of the grove intends putting on a new Steamboat next season that will beat any boat that steams out of Boston Harbor, and such a boat as the increase of business demands. Messrs Hadwin & Gill, lessees of the hotel, are men of rare business capacity, and under-stand well the wants of the public, and by their ardnons and untiring efforts to please their patrons they have gained the confidence of the public and in closing their business for the season they have the pleasure and gratification of knowing that they have by their honorable and strict attention to business gained a rep-ntation for themselves and for the Hotel and Grove that will class them with the

A CALIFORNIA BANKER.

A New York Sun correspondent writes as follows: Looking at W. C. Ralston any one would have said that he was, of any one would have said that he was, of all men, the one most unlikely to commit suicido. Knowing him, that presumption would have deepened into a profound conviction. He seemed an embodiment of intense vitality, physical as well as mental. Of medimm height and stont figure, he seemed to be possessed of great muscular strength and activity. A strong will was stamped upon every lineament of his convernance. His gray-hrown ever were keen and cold; his line hrown eyes were keen and cold; his lips were thin and straight; his cheek bones were high and cheeks rather flat; his promise of baldness; his smoothly shaven chin was square and had a anuppy way of closing on a negative, as though worked by a spring. Ever since anybody knew Ralston he has been in contest with somebody.

Raiston about it," was all one of them would venture to say. So, with his restless love for dabbling in all things and getting huld of all things, Raiston got a surprising number of irons in the tire of speculation. He owned a large share of the ore read at the Comstock lode, sud controlled the milk business of San Karaisson. He was twa-thirds San Francisco. He was two-thirds owner of the California Theater, and raked in a good share of the profits on the supply of artificial ice. He ran the Kimball Mannfacturing Company—which made wagons and furniture and all sorts of things, and he ran the Mis-sion Woollen Mills, and the iron works. He was the right bower of Friedlunder, the kieg of the grain ring, or else Fried-city. He was largely interested in the gas monopoly, and put a million and a in twenty-one hours and forty minntes, without quarter dollars into the Palace Hotel project. He held a powerful influence in local and even in State politics, and used to elect pretty much those whom leaves the control of the Egyptian coast bordering on Alyssinia to pundents.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON. AMERICAN OFFICERS IN EASTERN SER-VICE—A NEW FIELD FOR OUR SURPLUS MILITARY TALENT—GEN. C. D. STUNE AND OTHERS IN EGYPT.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10th, 1875. WASHINGTON, Sept. 10th, 1875.

I noticed in a morning peper the sunonnecement that Mr. Didvid E. Porter.

the sun of Admirsl Porter of the Navy, salled for Earupe on Saturday, en route to Egypt, to anter the service of the Khedive, having received an appointment on his staff. I can easily usderstand the calabilous under which this young gentleman is leaving his native isnd, sind the alreams of glory that are haunting his pillow as he rocks in his temporary cracke on the hreast of the brine. In the first place there is something fascisating about on the freast of the first. In the lines of the place there is something fascisating shout military service in Itaelf. The gandy, well fitting uniform, and jaunty step that is pleasing to the average civilian, and so pleasing to the foundation. rquisitely charming I" to the feminise e—the cissi sad brazen includy of the the glimmer of the bayoncts as they fiss! In the sign, are all provocative of sentilensat and suggestive of undefined glory. And then the East, the luxurious Orient land of entileing fishic and impassiosed soog, haunt of indolent case and issguidently soog, and the subtle of a residence smid the glorious listle of carrow that the Pyramide arising above the tops of luxurious palsas, and the subtle oldor of undefined fragrases permeating your chamber, treading the streets where Calife and Mamelukes have trod before you, gazad upon hy almond syed houris through luttleed wisdues, and lighted by the luttre of as Eastern and lighted by the luttre of sentences of sentences. trod before you, gszad upon hy almond-ayed hourls through lutticed wisduws, and lighted by the matter of as Eastern ann. And when the two are so teapting ly combined, what more in carthly bliss could be vouchsafed to the youthful enthusiast. Colonci—will it be Colonel? os the ataif of His Highness tha Khedivei glory, ab libatum, luxury and ronsintieuse unqualified. But were there not another side to this tempting pleture, this letter would have never been written.

Colonel H. B. Reed, furnerly adjutant of the 5th U.S. Artillery, which he resigned some fiva years ago to accept an appolatment in the Arnuy of Egypt, is now in this elty on sick leave. Colonel ited commanded a regiment of Volunteers during the late wer, and is an officer of ability and repute. This is the oilleer who commanded the expeditiou sent out by the state of the state during the late wer, and is an oneer of ability and repute. This is the officer who commanded the expeditiou sent out by the Kinedive to enquer Darfour, and for distinguished services during that campsign hrings with him the decoration of the order of the "Mejidi." This officer, I am informed, while uf course loyal to all that persults to the feality due the adversign pertains to the fealty due the aovereign nuder whom he serves, does not speak uf the service or the country in those enthu-sin-tle atrains which one wuntu he led to axpect. In the first pisce, the cunntry is unusmetic at most seasons of the year, damp and penetrating, while the sun at uoundny drives native and stranger alike teeth of danger. The pay is by no means regular or the service cousonaut with the agreement. Again, the Egyptian court is darkened and degraded by intriguers and subtilu deviltries to which our civilization is a stranger, and from which our moral training would start in dismay and repel with instinctive dread. It is only by plots and counterplots, that a position once ob-tained can be retained or made even tena-So little to be desired is an appointment of this nature, that several army officers who have been tendered positions in the army of Egypt have within the past month dectined with thanks. Lieut. R. P. This patronage of American talent by Itis Highness, seems to have had its origin in Gen. Thad Matt, a son of the celebra-ted Surgeon of New York, who went to Egypt many years ago, and has managed to raise himself to the highest rank at the Caurt of the Khedive. If I am not mis-taken, Gen. In short, it needed organization and who so competent to furnish the organizers as America, which had but lately liraintree, who is now upwards of one gauthers as America, which had but lately graduated from an interesting little caupuign of its own. When Gen. Mott visited this country a few years ago, he was commissioned to procure officers of the requisite calibre, well disciplined, and educated to arms as a profession. His first selection was Charles D. Stong the action. selection was Charles D. THE prominent prospective candidates of the Republican party for Governor of this Commonwealth have been shut out of the pale of the Tamperanca Alliance. In resolutions adopted at a late meeting which declare that the Hon. Alexande H. He declined to believe in aither Loring or Rice, and hoped there would be a "mass" at Worcester. Rev. Mr. Foster of Randolph objected to the personal references in the resolutions, and was supported in this opinion by Dr. William Carneli. Mr. Brigham came to the defence of Dr. Loring, saying that his whole record proved him to be anything but unreliable, and urging temperance people to give him a fair trial. PERPLEXITIES OF A WESTERN FARMER. "Cursed be the ground for thy sake; in sherow shall then eat of it all the days of thy iffe." This language was used to Adam, 5379 years ago; but it applies with peculiar force to the western farmer. In early spring time, he sows his seed broad cast o'er the land, hoping he may be permitted to gather an abusdant harvest. In the first of the soil, and leave his wheat and osts uncovered, and eaposed to the datlone of black-birds and prairie chickens. Cold wet weather, sometimes foising the ground. Then he must replant or have nothing in harvest. The Colorado the soil, and cut worms destroy his onlons.

Perhaps the season is unusually favorable, and he enconaters none of these perpleaities. Wheat, osts, corn, potatoes, &c., coms up, look weil and promise much. Then perhaps a drought follows, his corn looks as though it had the janudice, and his small grain is dwarfed in stature, and the heads do not fill out well. Potatoen are small, and there are but few in a hill. He may sscape drought, and all the above named calamities : then while he is rejoieing at the prospect of an abundant a few honrs, all his golden prospects. Wheat dies, corn is eaten, despair satties down, and the poor man hardly known what to do neat. My Life. My life is like the summer rose,

That opens to the morning sky;
But, ere the sinder of evening close,

Is scattered na the ground—to die. But on the rose's humble bed The sweetest dewe of night are shed

As if ohe wept such waste to see 1 But name shall wamp a tour for me My life is like the autumn leaf, That trembles in the moon's pale ray; Its hild is frail, its date is brief,

Yet, ere that leef shall fall end fade, The parent tree shall menin its shade | The winds hewall the leafers tree | But none shall breaths a sigh for me,

My life is like the print which feet 'Have left on Tempa's desert strand; Soon as the rising tide shall beet, This track shall vanish from the sand,

Yet etill, se grieving to efface All veetige of the human race, On that lone clinre inud means the sea; But none chalf e'er fameot for me.

THE REGULAR DETECTIVE. What He Owes to Society and How He Pays the Debt-Some Interesting Inci-

A correspondent of the World, writing of the detective system, gives the following interesting incidents:

It is very hard to make the detective understand that It is vory hard to make the detective understand that he owes anything to society. His moral sense is nover cultivated. He quite as often prevents a criminal from reforming as he prevents justice from overtaking him. Caplain Young once told me of several cases where the stupid indiscretion of the officer had loaded society with outlaws. One was that of the well known One-cyed Thompson, who early in his career was saved from the clutches of the law by some friends, who raised a sum of money for him and sout him out West. He settled in a thriving town on the border, and, changing his name, made a most praiseworthy effort to become a useful taember of society. He opened a store, won the respect of the townsstore, won the respect of the towns-people, was actually male selectman, and was in a fuir way to live leng and die lieuoreil for his many virtnes when sud-denly he turned up on the streets here

It seems incredible, but it is lrue, ne officer went straight into the slore. One week later the young man was in its usual quiet. Johnny Maas only needed to be told to go to headquarters to re-tort hims of the course and endurance were without limit. Sen dogs they were; se-with him, and it was agreed that he shouldn't have "the cholera" unless he hroke through his resolution. About a year after that, in the dead of

About a year after that, in the dead of a severe winter, the superintendent was coming through Orosby street into Bleecker, and he met Johnny Mass. The fellow was dressed in a thir bombasine coat. He was collarless, and his feet were ont, and he looked hungry, pinched and wretched.

"I'm glad you've kept your word, Johnny, Bai it's going pretty hard with yon, I snippose, to be homest"

"Awful hard, sir," said Johnny; "On'l told her I would, and I did."

"That's right. Don't you go back of your word. Stick it out. You'll have better times by-and-hyo."

"Do you see that bank over there?" said tha young man, pointing to the matche. building in Bleecker street. "Well, there aim money enough in that place to make me go hack. I'd rather go cold and hnagry and not be hunted—so I would."

The next anymer one of the hotel next.

A few menthe ago a member of the New York Historical Society read before Now York Historical Society read before that association a very interesting paper in which he took occasion to deny the assertion that Kidd, the pirate, ever huried any of his treasure on this continent. "God knows," he said, "I tried as hard as nnybody could to be henest, but it's no use!"

The English seamen and marines of thirty years ago, says Frazer's Magazine, came quite up to the descriptions in Marryatt's novels. Fee could read in Marryatt's novels. Of course a detective who had the slightest notion of his obligation as a man ble to do so then was sou known to every one as n "neble soon known to every one as n "neble soo an officer, would not have made this mistake.

And that reminds me of mother case which ought to teach even police officers that discretion and kindness are not without fruits even in this lunsiness.

Everylogly in the force remembers Johnny Mans. He was a pickpocket, and belonged to a mob that worked on the west side. How he get into the company of these people it would be hard to tell. But he was an udroit and rather analable thief that scarcely ever caused the force any trouble. It was enstonary in the days of the metropolitan police to beek up all the pickpockets and gunns, "when there was to be a great celebration or procession. They were energly ordered to the Central office, and there kept until the city was restored to its nonly Mans only need."

place to make me go hack. I'd rather go cold and hnagry and not be hnnted—so I would."

The next summer one of the hetel properietors at Leag Branch sent up to the superintendent for a man to keep an eye on the thieves that hang around a watering-place. "I can get you a man," said the superintendent, thinking of Johnny, "but I'm bound to tell you he'e been a thief,"

Then I don't want him."

Then I don't want him."

Then I don't want him."

Then the superintendent told the story I have told, only he told it hetter.

"Send him down," said the landlord. "A chap that'll do that oaght to be helpe.I."

It was $25 a week to Jehany, and it made a man of him.

During that season there wasn't a rehbery commilted at the Brunch. Johnny stationed himself at the railroad depot, and when he saw a former pal he warned him off. "It'e no use," he would say, "I dea't want to pipe none of you boys, and I ain't goin' to do it if you etay away. If you come here it'll be awful rongh on both of ns."

And to their credit it ought to he said that they alwaye went back.

Nothing is so disconraging to a young lawyer just as he waxes eloquent about angel's tears, weeping willows and tombstones, as to be interrupted by the cold-hleoded jadge with, "You're off your nest, linh; this is a case of hog-stealing."

Agnes Moyers, a young lady living at San Buenaventurs, has just starved to death, owing to the burning of her throat by a solution of potash which she took by mistake, the excertation being so dread-ful that she was unable to swallow anything but ice-water. To commence at the very beginning, we have first the paper upon which the note is printed. Examine it closely—if you never have before—and you will notice the littic hite fibre which is sentered over the right hand end of the familiar factional currency and U. S. notes; a small affair in Itself, you will say, but yet the one obstacle which the skill of the counterfeiter has never overcome. It is chemically prepared and defies alteration—this is the necond clustacle. The application of an acid or an aikall, which is indespensable to alteration, destroys the mote, by changing the pinkish-hiue tint to a positive color, which will cause the possessor to reject it by reason of its suspicious appearance. This paper is mannafactured under the supervision of a Treasury agent, at the "tilen Milis," nest Philadelphia, and every individual sheel or portion of a sheet is mastrictly guarded and accounted for, as though it bore the happers of a thousand dailar bond. To each machine at the mills is uttached an automatic register, which is locked and the key held scenrely in the possession of the Treasury agent. Every square inch manufacted by the machine is accurately recorded and must agree with the completed material. .PAST BRAINTREE .- On the afternoon of Sahbath last, the Rev. Mr. Wright, of the Baptist Church, occupied the pulpit of the Union Congregational Church, of Weymouth and Braintree. We remember that Mr. Wright conducted the services of this congregation on last Thanksgiving day and on that occasion he delivered a sermon of rare merit, and which we intended to have noticed, but from some aversight was neglected at the time. Mr. Wright, on the present occasion, chose for his text, the 4th verse of the 6th chap, of Galatians, "But let every man prove his own work, and then shall he have rejoicing in bimself alone, and not in another." Fram this text Mr. Wright preached an excellent sermon on the personal responsibility of christians, both in the Church and society. So far as we could gather from these two prelections and this incidentally, Mr. Wright does and this incidentally, Mr. Wright does not seem very deeply impressed with the value or the particulars of dogmatic orthodoxy. The christians, according to Mr. Wright's idea, is one who sets himself earnestly and faithfully to do the Divine will, and who is not overcareful in appreciating from a theological point of view, those specific relations of truth in the those specific relations of truth in the form of doctrine and institutions, which christians in general have accepted as the most effectual source of regenerative Physician & Surgeon power, both for the individual and for soclety. People who are ever active in human duty need not be indifferent about religion; on the contrary, they may be strongly religious. They may condemn coldness and commend fervor, and yet all the time may but feebly and only partly appreciate points of christian tlogma-nay, they may even like Charles Lamb, hold themselves apart from its central propositions. So it may come about that the comparative purity of a man's nature, the milder form of the tleterioration he inherits, the fearless cheerfulness with which he seems to stand and walk in the light of God's presthe warmer and the more inward spirit ence, may impair his power to estimate ual parts of christianity, and giving credit to others for possessing similar disposi tions to his own, he may fail to appreci ate the severer side of the gospel and forget that such is a law which is made not for the righteous, but for the ungodly, and is used to correct reckless men in their headlong course, to constrain them to come in, and to rescue them as brands from the burning. We believe that Mr Wright would be slow to charge all such partial conceptions of doctrinal truth upon moral defect, or to deny the truth, force and value of the heart service, which they may and render, and so with affectionate lumility to their Father, and their God. Mr. Wright does not veil the plain philosophic vapor. His statements of it are clear, simple, and consistent, and his pleetling for it direct and earnest, his religion is a cheerful religion, and this makes his preaching hopeful, and while not denying or disguising the terors of the Lord, nor shuting his eyes to the depths of obstinacy and evil in human hearts, yet he evidently believes in glad tidings for all people, and we should think that his mind will be drawn naturally to what is cheering and encourage-terised by great common sense.

Jersoy Cuttle. If the value of Jersey stock is to rest on color, deterioration will surely follow of those useful qualities that are far more of those assful qualities that are far more about the good old-fashioned particulored cow, than that which will be found among the generality of llue, high-bred, whole-colored fawns, grays, or foxy, so-called Jerseys. I have owned hundreds of acclimated Jersey stock, and have never, as a rule, faund the whole-colored such large producers as many purti-endored ones; in fact, by far the most latter-producing cow I ever possessed was not only parti-celored, but possessed was not only particulored, but the most ugly and mignify beast of the lot; yet her stock have never failed to their large butter-making qualities. The true type of a Jersuy cow is, in fact, an animal that will not make ment. I do not say that this is not improved upon by acclimatization and a elight introduction of a hardler breed, of which what are termed Chichester Jersey are the best description; neither road dust is made is clayey, the layers of each may be of equal thickness; if sandy, the dust should be at least twice as thick the dust should be at least twice as thick as the layer of droupings. Old barrels in may kind may be used for this purpose, but if previously scaled with gas tar, they will last many years. If the contents are pounded on a thor into flue powder before applying, the fertilizer may be sown from a drift. Beard dust is one of the most perfect decolorizers of vanils—converting their contents also into rich manner. Place a barrel or low, strender the colors of it in the closet, with a sendid dipper, and throw down a pint into the vanite each time it is neceptively and there will be no offensive odor whatever. This is simpler, charper and better than a water closet, and mover freezes or gets out of order. Mixing the read dust with equal bulk of coal ashes is an improvement, and there will as a matter for corder. The child-stealers intended to go into this lusi-ness extensively. They were deter-mined on large profits on their ventures. For some reason they made an error in their very first intempt. They believed that Mr. Ross was a rich man—one to whom a ransom of twenty thousand dol-lars for a favorite child would be a light sum. If Mr. Rosshad been as well ablo to pay the money as the conspirators thought he was, they would have speedily received the cash, and it is quite likely that the lusiness of kidnapping would have flourished for a season.
